High-Risk Clinic

Helping You Manage Your Chronic Conditions

Our team

The Family Health Centers at NYU Langone have a dedicated team to help patients manage chronic conditions like high blood pressure. They work closely with patients to create a care plan that fits their specific needs and lifestyle.

The plan includes:

- how and when to take medications
- identifying steps to reach health goals
- reviewing readings from home monitoring devices
- learning self-management skills to monitor health in between doctor's visits
- finding and accessing community services

How to get help from the High-Risk Clinic team?

When you see your primary care doctor for a regular visit, they may notice that you need help managing your chronic condition. Your doctor will request that a representative from the High-Risk Clinic team contact you to schedule a virtual visit. During the visit, the team will work closely with you and your caregivers to develop a personalized care plan and with your primary care doctor to monitor your progress.

Medicare, Medicaid and other major insurances accepted. For patients without insurance, a sliding fee scale is available.
